this book provides a conceptual historical and contemporary context to the relationships between gender religion and cities it draws together these three components to provide an innovative view of how religion and gender interact and affect urban form and city planning while there have been many books that deal with religion and cities gender and cities and gender and religion this book is unique in bringing these three subjects together this trio of inter relationships is first explored within western christianity in roman catholicism protestantism eastern orthodoxy and in the pentecostal and charismatic movements a wider perspective is then provided in chapters on the ways in which islam shapes urban development and influences the position of muslim women in urban space while official religions have declined in the west there is still a desire for new forms of spirituality and this is discussed in chapters on municipal spirituality and on the rise of paganism and the links to both environmentalism and feminism finally ways of taking into account both gender and religion within the statutory urban planning system are presented this book will be of great interest to those researching environment and gender urban planning and sustainability human geography and religion this lively and accessible introduction to planning covers the theory history and policy debates that make up the subject ideally suited to those new to the topic and with coverage of planning under the coalition government it provides an up to date and broad ranging overview of the field it brings out the social and political dimensions of planning showing how priorities have changed with successive governments and in response to wider global trends with helpful illustrative material throughout and drawing on aspects of sociology social geography and urban design this comprehensive introduction to uk planning is essential reading for planning and non planning students alike a companion website provides a range of additional resources including further reading tasks photographs and e supplements on planning systems government publications and transport and property development amongst other items of interest planning is currently a male profession but an analysis of a century of town planning reveals this to be a new development women have been central to the planning movement since it began women and planning is the first comprehensive history and analysis of women and the planning movement covering the philosophical practical and policy dimensions of planning for women beyond the marginalization of women modern scientific planning hides a story of past links with eugenics colonialism artistic utopian and religious movements and the occult central to the discussion is the questioning of how male planners have rewritten planning in their own image projecting patriarchal assumptions in their creation of urban realities issues of class sexuality ethnicity and disability are raised by the fundamental question of who is being planned for non plan explores ways of involving people in the design of their environments a goal which transgresses political categories of right and left attempts to circumvent planning bureaucracy and architectural inertia have ranged from free market enterprise zones to self build housing and from squatting to sophisticated technologies of prefabrication yet all have shared in a desire to let people shape the built environment they want to live and work in how can buildings better reflect the needs of their inhabitants how can cities better facilitate the work and recreation of their many populations modernism had promised a functionalist approach to resolving the architectural needs of the twentieth century yet the design of cities and buildings often appears to confound the needs of those who use them their design and layout being highly regulated by restrictive legislation planning controls and bureaucracy non plan considers the theoretical and conceptual frameworks within which architecture and urbanism have sought to challenge entrenched boundaries of control focusing on the architectural history of the post war period to the present day this provocative book will be of interest to architects planners and students of architecture design town planning and architectural history its contributors include architects critics and historians including many whose work helped shape the non plan debate during the period list of contributors cedric price benjamin franks elizabeth lebas eleonore kofman ben highmore yona friedman paul barker clara greed barry curtis colin ward ian horton john beck chinedu umenyilora and malcolm miles in toilet noted sociologist harvey molotch and lauren noren bring together twelve essays by urbanists historians and cultural analysts among others to shed light on the public restroom and how it reflects and sustains our cultural attitudes towards gender class and disability following on from introducing town planning and implementing town planning this third volume in the series examines the scope and nature of modern town planning in greater depth it investigates the theories and preoccupations which inform the current planning agenda compares this with earlier objectives and discusses likely future trends written by a team of expert contributors under the general editorship of clara greed the book begins with a review of town planning and then goes on to discuss the major themes in five parts the economic context of town planning planning for housing planning for sustainability planning for city centres or decentralisation changing agendas and agencies within this contextualising framework the contributors investigate many of the current and often conflicting urban policy issues challenging the planning profession over and above a commitment to traditional physical land use matters planning practitioners nowadays must take on board new priorities deriving from the environmental movement the European Union the economic climate changing local authority structures and legislative frameworks the contributors discuss these new agendas and demonstrate how they link to inner city regeneration city centre management sustainability issues and wider social policy and urban governance questions this volume incorporates a more discursive and reflective approach to studying and thus constitutes a valuable text for final year undergraduate and postgraduate courses in town planning surveying building architecture and housing as well as RPI RICS CIOH CIOB ASi ISVA and RIBA courses it will be of interest to a wider readership studying urban economics urban sociology social policy and urban geography and to young professionals in both the public and private sector of the property world this companion to Introducing Urban Design Interventions and Responses shows how the principles and concepts of urban design can be applied and implemented in a range of real world settings many issues such as access for the disabled childcare facilities environmental matters and ethnic minority issues are excluded from town planning considerations by planning authorities this book introduces the concept of social town planning to integrate planning policy and practices with the cultural and social issues of the people they are planning for part 1 provides background on the development of a social dimension to the predominantly physical land use based British town planning system part 2 investigates a representative selection of minority planning topics in respect of gender race age and disability cross linked to the implications for mainstream policy areas such as housing rural planning and transport part 3 discusses the likely influence of a range of global and European policy initiatives and organisations in changing the agenda of British town planning planning for healthy cities sustainability social cohesion and equity are discussed part 4 looks at the problem from a cultural perspective arguing that a great weakness in the British system resulting in ugly and impractical urban design has been the lack of concern among planners with social activities and cultural diversity alternative more culturally inclusive approaches to planning are presented which might transcend the social spatial dichotomy such as urban time planning concluding that the process of planning must change the authors agree that the culture and composition of the planning profession must particularly change to be more representative and reflective of the people they are planning for in terms of gender race and minority composition how well do our designed environments the places and spaces where we live work and play meet our aesthetic and functional needs increasingly the distinction between the spaces considered public and private or work and home is becoming more blurred as a result innovative designs are needed to meet the challenges of our ever changing environment our streets parks dwellings and tools are designed to a one size fits all standard and the responses of the design community to meet diverse needs have been mixed at best design and feminism offers feminist critiques of these inadequate design standards and suggest ideas projects and programs for change the interdisciplinary essays reflect the writers diverse fields architecture planning industrial and graphic design and architectural urban and design history essays cover such subject as rethinking the american city graphic design and the urban landscape working at home theories of women and design and a trio of essays on industrial designs a review essay of the literature in these fields the first of its kind rounds out the collection contributors are amelia amon wendy e brawer cheryl buckley sue cavanagh alethea cheng roberta m feldman etain fitzpatrick alice t friedman dolores hayden ghislaine hermanuz barbara knecht ellen lupton maggie mahboubian francine monaco nancy perkins victoria rosner joan rothschild susana torre lynne walker and leslie kanes weismann
